187	1911 Minnesota Porcelain Automobile License Plate. Minnesota first began issuing metal plates before deciding to experiment with porcelain, and like a Few other states, it did so for precisely one year. The Minnesota 1909 and 1910 issues were attractive flat painted metal plates. But in 1911, the state chose to make a change, issuing a simple but striking white and deep blue porcelain plate. Unlike the previous two years, the porcelains were issued as singles only and they It is reported there were 19,600 plates issued in 1911. Perhaps because of the susceptibility of these plates to chipping, Minnesota abandoned their use of porcelain in 1912. This Plate is in very Good Condition, Readable, with chips around the Edges. One of only 19,600 this is a Rare Find. 5" x 12"

542	Antique Telegraph Sounder. Used along Side the Telegraph Key so the operator could hear The Code. When current flows through an electromagnet, the resulting magnetic field attracts an armature that is held up by a weight. When the current is switched on, the arm is pulled down to the electromagnet, resulting in a "click" When the current ends, the weight pulls the armature back to its resting position, resulting in a "clack." Thus, as the Telegraph key makes and breaks a contact, the sounder echoes the up and down state of the key.
